Davis will lead Goodwill's education division

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. – Goodwill of Central and Southern Indiana announces a new Vice President of Education, Anne Davis. In this role, Davis is responsible for leading the organization's strategic efforts to help individuals and families access education services provided by Goodwill Education Initiatives.

Davis has been with Goodwill since 2016, previously serving as senior director of education initiatives. She brings extensive educational leadership experience to this position, having served at both the state and local school district level. Davis has previously served as the state director of special education as well as the director of individualized learning at the Indiana Department of Education.

"Goodwill strongly believes it is essential to raise education attainment levels in Indiana," said Betsy K. "Anne Davis possesses both the expertise and the mission mindset to lead the work happening throughout our education division, which impacts the lives of thousands of Hoosiers each year."

In this new capacity, Davis will oversee the strategic direction and operations of Goodwill's education division, which includes The Excel Center, a network of public high schools for adult learners that provides over 4,200 Hoosiers the opportunity to earn a Core 40 diploma, industry certifications and college credits every year, all at no cost, and Indianapolis Metropolitan High School, a best-fit school for teenagers experiencing barriers to education.

Davis earned a B.S. in Elementary Education from Valparaiso University and a M.S. in School Leadership from Indiana University. Davis holds long-standing credentials as a licensed Indiana teacher, school administrator and certified director of exceptional learners.
